

Oil and Gas Field General Management Services

Oil and gas field general management services refer to integrated general management provided for clients during the whole process from production capacity construction to production operation. Anton provides various general management services, including oilfield construction management, reservoir engineering support, operation management, production operation and maintenance, procurement, HSSE, logistics management, to help clients maximize management simplification and cost savings, and achieve high efficiency and profits.

Service Capability and Advantages

- Integrated general management services for large oil and gas field development.
- Integrated design and optimized management for field surface and subsurface development plan.
- Professional and international oilfield management team, with technical experts from international recognized E&P companies.
- Complete oilfield management service system.
- Complete oilfield technical service chain and the system support for oilfield development to reduce costs.
- The advantage of digitization and intelligence.
- Quick and efficient domestic resource integration.
- The ability to work efficiently under harsh conditions to reduce operation risks.

Services Tracking Records

- Anton undertakes the comprehensive management of a giant oilfield in Iraq. Since the project took over, it has been running smoothly for more than 480 days. The output has risen steadily and the HSSE has performed well. It is highly praised by the asset owner.
- Anton undertakes the management of an Oilfield in Chad, Africa, to help the clients with new oilfield production and development management.

